

Words from my past.

These are the words of a man who loved hard,
lost more than most, and found his way back.

Written across twenty years in the United States Navy — through deployments, sea duty, and the long distance from home — this collection moves through love and longing, through loss and the dark that comes with it, and finally toward hope: the quiet discipline of getting up again.

Twenty-nine poems on love, distance, grief, faith,
history, and the standard a man carries with him
wherever he lands.

*“For anyone who has loved hard, lost more than most,
fell into despair — and found a way to grow and move forward.”*

DEWAYNE A. DICKERSON
The Nomadic Barber · U.S. Navy, 20 Years

DEWAYNE A. DICKERSON

The Nomadic Barber

True Love Is Reality

love, loss, despair, and survival — words from my past